7/30/2005	Beautiful - Keep up conservation of marine life, etc.
7/31/2005	Mr. Balazs: I was influenced to some extent by your research and comments. I have spoken to Bridget about the possibility of bridging the gap between abuse and morbid avoidance of these beautiful animals. I would like to see NOAA sponsor a turtle encounter similar to what is done with rays and dolphins at Sea Life Park. I strongly believe that people love what they are educated to love.	Hauula, HI
8/2/2005	It is so great to see the larger signs letting people know how to handle (or not!) the turtles in the bay. There is a lot less abuse and handling.	Napa, CA
8/2/2005	So beautiful and magnificent creatures. We are back again to visit these sea creatures. Be kind to these creatures and give them their space then we can continue enjoying them.	MA

8/12/2005	Such a beautiful sight to see. The beach is beautiful but the turtles take your breath away. Thank you for allowing us this great opportunity and learning experience! Mahalo!	Riverside, CA
8/12/2005	Amazing sight to see.	Canada
8/13/2005	I was amazed by the dynamic between the turtles and swimmers - they seem to fully respect many of us. However, I did notice near the rock ledge, away from the signs, some swimmers were doing everything to the turtles the banner warns against. "Feeding, touching, crowding, harassing." Perhaps a sign further up the beach would be helpful. Mahalo. I am a transfer student to UH marine biology program and would be very interested in working with the turtles, and any information you could give me - Thanks!!
